We have recently received some information stemming from the Julian conference this last year, which energizes us towards this year.

Jan Kind of Theosophy Forward has just published two special editions featuring speakers from the Julian conference. One is from Rollin McCraty, Ph.D. He writes an introduction to his article, í Coherence Bridging Personal, Social, and Global Health.î

I very much enjoyed my time at the INTERNATIONAL THEOSOPHY CONFERENCE in Julian California this summer (August 11-14 2011) and was pleasantly surprised to learn that the basic principles our research has helped confirm are in such close resonance. I look forward to getting to know the Theosophical community and exploring the many ways our organizations can work together in collaboration and cooperation to facilitate the shift in consciousness that is currently underway. It is my hope that we can work together to ease the stress that many people are and will be going through as we move into more coherence and alignment with the higher principles that we share. . The second is from is from Ruth Richards, M.D., Ph.D., and she writes in her article, í A New Aesthetic for Environmental Awareness: Chaos Theory, the Beauty of Nature, and Our Broader Humanistic Identity.î

I left the ITC Conference, International Theosophy Conference, August 2011, on a high. Lovely people joined (across related organizations) by a greater truth and a need to help catalyze new consciousness in the world, for the benefit of all beings. Time to work together . time for the ties that bind. I was reminded of a piece I wrote earlier for a special issue on Ecopsychology of the Journal of Humanistic Psychology. In this issue, I and various others were looking at our profound interconnection with all of life, indeed all the cosmos, and the depth and complexity of our awareness and who we really are. We were broadening the traditional purview of humanistic psychology. I shared with Jan Kind, whom I was privileged to meet at the ITC gathering, and I am honored he is presenting it here, and in such a stunning way. . Ruth Richards, M.D., Ph.D., Introduction.+

The momentum is rising. Please begin to make your plans for the Wheaton conference.
